Dear Mr. Eastin,

With my work schedule I am not able to attend the meetings in person but do appreciate being given an email address to express my concerns.

If our community were given a vote my vote would be a resounding No to the new development planned. I understand a developer sees an opportunity to make a lot of money as perhaps does Snohomish in taxes. However the largeness of the plan and the impact it would have in our small, quiet community is troubling.

If development is a must then make it fit in with the existing community, not so large that it drastically changes it. The roads by the beach are two lane roads. If you were to put hundreds or thousands of additional people and cars in this area no doubt the roads would be expanded and lots of little beach houses that have been there for years would be destroyed. The people who live in those homes have the right to live as they have. Why would the needs for people just moving in override the existing residence?

My husband had to move three times in childhood because of the freeway. It is understandable when progress is being made and the citizens have to move for the better of all. This is certainly not the case here.

I suggest a drastic downsize in the plan, leave the roads and the community as little changes as possible. There are more important things than profit, such as the natural beauty of the beach unpopulated by hundreds of more people. For so many reasons I fear the "progress" that is being suggested.

Sincerely,

Colleen Holbrook
