Snohomish County Human Services Department Announces Survey on Aging

EVERETT, Wash., April 10, 2019 – Today, Snohomish County Human Service Department announced the launch of a public opinion survey which is now available online. The Human Services Division of Long Term Care and Aging is seeking ideas and concerns from residents regarding long term care and aging programs and services within Snohomish County. The public survey will be available throughout the month of April 2019 and will close on May 15, 2019.

“It is important that the services we develop are informed by the Snohomish County residents who will be utilizing those services,” said Human Services Department Director Mary Jane Brell Vujovic. “We must continually insure we are directing resources to address the areas of greatest challenge, and Snohomish County residents are most knowledgeable about the long-term care and aging services they need.”

Snohomish County runs significant programs to support those who need long term care or who take advantage of programs for seniors. Most funding comes from state and federal grant programs. The link for the survey can be found here, and we encourage everyone to share it with family, friends, and contacts who care about programs for seniors.
